ISBN: 9067650498. pp. 320 with index. From the back cover: "This book, first published as a revised edition of Dr. Benda's dissertation in 1958, was the first systematic political history of Indonesian Islam. It still is an authoritative and invaluable guide to modern Indonesian history today. Part one of the book surveys the history of Indonesian Islam under Dutch colonial rule, with special emphasis on the twentieth century. It analyzes Muslim reactions to Dutch Islamic policies, as well as the part played in Indonesian politics by Islamic groups during the last decades of Dutch rule. This analysis culminates in a significant reinterpretation of pre-war Indonesian Islam.. Part two carries the analysis into the period of the brief Japanese interregnum (1942-1945). The successes and failures of Japan's Islamic policies and the Indonesian Muslim community's rise to political prominence in these crucial and formative years are traced in detail. The book benefits by the combination of careful historical research and sociological insight to provide a lucid analysis and vivid picture of Japanese Islamic policy." $70.00

SDU Uitgeverij, 1989. Paperback. Very Good ISBN: 90-1206237-3. 336 pages. Het voormalige nederlands-indie werd in de negentiende eeuw vergeleken met een melkko. Indie zou de "kurk" zijn waarop Nederland dreef. Inderdaad verkreeg Nederland in de jaren 1830-1877 zo'n slordige 844 miljoen uit zijn kolonie. Deze Indische batige sloten waren een hoogst welkome aanvulling op de Nederlandse staatsfinancien. Dankbaar werd het geld gebruikt voor de rentebetaling en aflossing van de hoge staatschuld, belastingverlaging en de verbetering van de Nederlandse infrastructuur. Het batig slot deed echter ook een gevoel van schuld tegen de inheemse bevolking ontstaan. Meer en meer werd de verplichting gevoeld de kolonie tot ontwikkeling to brengen. Dit boek besteedt aandacht aan de voortdurende discussie in Nederland en in Indie over het dilemma tussen get financiële en het morele aspect in het Nederlandse koloniale beleid. $22.00
